Featured Product

is popular because it is perfect for securing equipment that may need to be moved often. It can eliminate the need to permanently attach a security plate to the desk and/or computer.

When purchased alone, the Looped Cable (# BH50LX-NL) can be used in conjunction with our TECHNALOCK kits, accessory packs, Cable Security Ring or TowerLock. The Looped Cable has one looping end to secure around a stationary object (shown looped through the hole in a computer desk on right).

When the Looped Cable comes attached to a Notebook Security Plus device (# N60A-KA), it will also allow you to loop the cable around a stationary device then the lock head inserts into a built-in security slot found on many types of equipment.

Funny Criminals

A criminal who broke into a couple's house started to take the TV, but instead he turned it on and began to watch. He supposedly liked the program that was on and laid down on the bed. Since it was at night he was tired and fell asleep. So when the couple came home the next day they found him and called the police.<sup>1</sup>

Not all criminals are this foolish...be sure to order your AV-Safe kits today to protect your TV's and entertainment systems!
